

New study about the early experiences of children with fragile X syndrome and their parents in North Carolina

Researchers from UNC-Chapel Hill and RTI International are conducting the study which focuses on:

1. The early development of children with fragile X syndrome
2. The experiences of parents with getting their child diagnosed and with getting early intervention services in North Carolina.

Who: We are currently enrolling children 0-5 years old who:

- Were born in North Carolina
- Received early intervention services in North Carolina between 0-3 years old.
- Live in a home where English is the primary language spoken

What: Participation will include:

- 1-3 visits with you and your child depending on the age of your child. The visits will take 2-3 hours and we will provide a free developmental assessment with your child.
- Parents will be asked to complete some questionnaires (approx. 1-2 hours).
- You will receive a brief summary report about your child's development and a $50 gift card for your time.

When: Now, we are currently enrolling participants!

Where: We will come to your home for the assessments with your child.

How: Please contact Anne Edwards at 1-866-214-2044 toll free/fragilex@rti.org, if you would like to learn more about this study.